Dear Harold,

Thankyou for sending the letter to Bill Schaap. I get the feeling that they are doing nothing for my book; my last two letters to them have not even been answered.

When I said on the phone that I remembered seeing, in a reliable place, information indicating a close connection between CIA and Little, Brown publishers, I was quite certain of that. I still am. But a search of my files has not produced a clear reference for that. I am afraid I saw it but did not copy it or take notes on it. I have enclosed a few pages documenting Time Inc's ownership of Little, Brown back to 1979 and one page hinting at a CIA link to Little, Brown. There are of course intelligence connections of various kinds to Time Inc (Time-Warner) through the Luce family, C.D. Jackson, etc. Mailer published at least three books with Little, Brown: The Executioner's Song (1979), Ancient Evenings (1983), and After the White Negro (1982)

I am sorry I couldn't do better for you. If I find anymore on Mailer, Little, Brown or Random House, I will send it promptly.

I am still hoping to visit in early May. I will probably call you when I have potential days.

I hope that both of you are doing okay. Thanks again; talk to you soon.

Sincerely,

Don Gibson
